

Sam Landess

Query Letter

Wrestling Observer
Dave Meltzer – Editor
dave@wrestlingobserver.com
1241 East Main Street
Stamford, CT 06902

Dear Mr. Meltzer

Plain and simple: having Roman Reigns fighting The Undertaker at Wrestlemania is a bad idea. Fans cannot stand him. He is booed constantly and disliked more than any other wrestler in the history of this company. Placing him in a match with an icon is a disgrace. Putting a poorly developed wrestler like Roman Reigns against a legend like The Undertaker in a match is one of the worst ideas World Wrestling Entertainment has ever had.

Wrestlemania is the biggest wrestling event of all time and is where the legend of The Undertaker was born. He is currently 23-1 at the event, which is unheard of. Wrestlemania is his backyard and he does not lose there. He has faced countless other wrestling legends over his WrestleMania career and having him fight a WWE superstar like Reigns would be a terrible idea and the statistics will prove me right. I will use statistics from each of their careers to explain why having them fight is a bad idea.

Reigns is a joke of a wrestler. He has no good fighting skills and absolutely no charisma on the microphone. He has not earned the right to fight The Undertaker, especially at the biggest stage of them all.

I have watched every Monday Night Raw and Smackdown Live for the past two and half years now. I am huge fan of WWE and know the history of the company and their wrestlers like the back of my hand. I am a Journalism student at Baylor University with writing experiences at the Department of Sustainability at Baylor.

I want to thank you for taking the time to read my query. I have enclosed a self-addressed stamped envelope for your reply. I look forward hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Sam Landess